

It is the duty of the FCC to insure a diversity in broadcast news coverage. Any attempt to revise the current standards will compromise this mission. Especially when this is done without public hearings and media coverage, the FCC appears to be acting in the interest of the very corporations it is supposed to be regulating rather than in the public interest.